

Brightway Solutions Announces Major Expansion

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE — Press Contact: Maria Delgado

AUSTIN, Texas — Brightway Solutions Inc. today made an important announcement regarding its plans to expand operations across the southwestern United States. The company, which was founded in January 5, 2014, said the expansion will create more than 300 new jobs over the next eighteen months.

"We are deeply committed to this community, and we believe this is a tremendous opportunity for everyone involved," said Brightway Solutions CEO Jonathan Pierce. Pierce, the Chief Executive Officer of the firm, spoke to reporters at a press conference held at 10:00 AM on Wednesday.

The new facility, located just 7 miles from downtown, will house manufacturing, logistics, and research teams under one roof. Construction is scheduled to begin in February and should be completed by late Fall. Company officials said the project represents an investment of approximately 45 million dollars.

Local government leaders praised the decision. "This is exactly the kind of growth our region needs," said Mayor Theresa Holt, who attended the event along with several members of the city council. Holt added that the city had worked closely with the company for over a year to finalize the agreement.

Brightway Solutions currently employs around 120 people and operates facilities in 4 states. Industry analysts expect the company to continue its rapid growth through 2026, particularly as demand for its products rises. The firm reported revenue of 230 million dollars last year, an increase of 18 percent compared to the previous year.

Background and Company History

Brightway Solutions was established by three engineers who met while working at a small startup. Their original goal was simple: to build reliable, affordable equipment for small businesses. Over the years, the company has grown dramatically, but its leadership insists the core mission has not changed.

"We never wanted to lose sight of who we are," explained co-founder Aisha Bennett. Bennett, who serves as Vice President of Engineering, said the team still reviews customer feedback personally every single week. She noted that the company received over 5 thousand support requests last quarter, and that the team responded to each one individually.

The company's headquarters, which opened in 2019, sits on a 14 acre campus. It includes a cafeteria, a gym, and a daycare center. Employees have described the environment as collaborative and welcoming. "It's honestly the best place I have ever worked at," said one engineer, who has been with the firm for 6 years.

Community Involvement

Beyond its business operations, Brightway Solutions is well known for its charitable work. The company donated nearly two hundred thousand dollars to local schools last year, and its employees volunteered more than 4 thousand hours of their time. The firm also sponsors an annual scholarship program for high school students who are interested in pursuing careers in science and technology.

"Giving back isn't just a slogan for us, it's a fundamental part of our identity," said Pierce. He added that the company plans to double its charitable giving in the coming years, and that employees will be encouraged to take paid time off for volunteer work.

The expansion announced today is expected to strengthen these efforts even further. According to a spokesperson, the new facility will include dedicated space for community events and educational workshops, which the company hopes to host beginning in the Summer of 2027.

What Comes Next

Over the next several months, Brightway Solutions will be focused on hiring new staff and preparing the new site. The company said it will hold a series of job fairs across the region, and that it expects to receive thousands of applications. Candidates who are interested can apply online at the company's website, or in person at any of its existing locations.

Pierce said he is "incredibly optimistic" about the future. "The next few years are going to be transformative," he said. "We have an incredible team, a clear vision, and the support of a wonderful community. I could not be more proud."

Analysts, however, have urged some caution. While most agree the expansion is a positive sign, a few have noted that the company will face stiff competition from larger rivals. "It's a bold move," said one market researcher. "But bold moves come with risk, and Brightway will need to execute carefully."

For now, though, the mood at Brightway Solutions is overwhelmingly positive. Employees gathered in the main lobby on Wednesday afternoon to celebrate the news, and Pierce addressed the crowd at 3 PM. He thanked everyone for their hard work, and he promised that the best was yet to come.
